McCoy-Fennell.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lynchburg, Va., July 10.—Announcement has just been made here of the marriage of Mack W. McCoy and Miss Flossie Fennell, both formerly of this city, which took place November 17 last at Bristol, Tenn., after a midnight elopement to that city. The elopement was the culmination of a romance begun while they were students together at a local commercial college. Last November Miss Fennell left her boarding-house, saying she would spend the night with a friend in the city. Instead, they went to Bristol and were married. Returning here, they resumed their work, and several months ago Mr. McCoy went to Christiansburg to accept a position.

At that time the young woman remained here, and several weeks ago she went to the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Henry Bourdon, at McKenney, Dinwiddie County, from where announcement of the marriage was made.

Mrs. McCoy, who has numerous friends here, has now gone to Christiansburg to make her home with her husband, who is also well and favorably known in Lynchburg.

KOINER OPPOSED TO MOORE'S PLAN

Will Not Change System to Make Vouchers Show What Money Is For.

NOBODY CHARGES FRAUD

Commissioner Explains That Special Auditor Examined Records, Which Board Approved.

Changes requested in the methods of issuing vouchers in the State Department of Agriculture, making them show for what purpose the money was being paid out, would necessitate a complete change in bookkeeping in the department, according to a statement issued yesterday by Commissioner G. W. Koiner, of the Department of Agriculture and Immigration. Correspondence published yesterday indicated that Mr. Koiner had declined to accede to a suggestion of the State Auditor that vouchers be so drawn as to show what the money was being paid out for. Mr. Moore requested this plan shortly after coming into office, in order that the Auditor's department would have a complete record of all payments of State funds, even though, as has happened in the past, vouchers be lost or stolen from the records of the Agricultural Department.

It is stated that in former years it was the custom for a very large number of vouchers to be drawn merely to G. W. Koiner, without any indication of what they were for, and that demonstrators and lecturers employed by the department in some instances were paid by Mr. Koiner's personal check, the records of the Auditor's office not indicating what amount they received. No one has charged misappropriation of funds, but the system is held to be a black box, which might readily lend itself to abuses.

Six years ago, following a report by W. McK. Evans and George S. Crenshaw, expert accountants, sharply criticizing the methods of accounting in the Department of Agriculture, the board introduced a system of bookkeeping which is still in vogue. Mr. Koiner expresses himself as unwilling to change from that system to meet the views of the State Auditor of Public Accounts.

Mr. Koiner's Statement.
Mr. Koiner issued yesterday the following statement:

"The system of bookkeeping employed in the State Department of Agriculture and Immigration was adopted six years ago by the State Board of Agriculture upon the recommendation of the State Accountant appointed by the legislative Auditing Committee, and has been strictly followed. The books of the Department of Agriculture were made according to that system, and all the accounts have been examined three times a year by the State Board of Agriculture, and once each year by the State Accountant, and have been found to be correct by all of them.

"The change that was recommended by Mr. Moore would necessitate a change in the system that was adopted six years ago. My financial clerk, Mr. Berry, stated that Mr. Moore's plan could not be adopted without a change in our system. I brought this matter to the attention of the State Board of Agriculture, and they agreed with myself and Mr. Berry, and instructed me to adhere to the system now in use. This is not the only department that does not use Mr. Moore's plan. Every warrant sent to the chairman of the State board for his approval has attached to it the bill for which the money is in payment, and these receipts have been examined by the State board at each meeting of the board."

CONEY ISLAND GOES INTO OTHER HANDS

Not New York's Famous Resort, but One in County Armagh.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FONTENAY.
CONEY ISLAND—not New York's suburban seaside pleasure resort, but the one of Lough Neagh, in County Armagh—has just passed into the hands of a newcomer, through the death of handsome old Lord Charlemont, and the succession of his nephew, James Alfred Caulfield, of the county and the entailed estate which includes also Roxborough Castle, in County Tyrone.

The Coney Island in County Armagh is a favorite retreat of St. Patrick, and derives its name from St. Coney. It is to say, she is called "Saintr" Coney, in Ireland, although she has had to remain content with beatification, and is still awaiting canonization.

St. Coney, it appears, was a woman who lived in a lonely cell in the woods of Tyrone, in a district now named Kilconey, forming part of Lord Charlemont's domain of Drumcain, near Stewartstown. She seems to have practiced the art of leechcraft and medicine with so much success as to inspire respect and awe in the minds of the natives. When in the fourteenth century the O'Neills advanced from the Derry side to displace the O'Connors, who held possession of the southern coast of Lough Neagh, their chief Dermot, fell seriously ill. His men urged him to invoke the advice of Coney. But she would only consent to prescribe for him if he was brought to her cell. The O'Neills accordingly carried their ailing chief to Coney, where he died, and the advice of the natives was followed. The O'Connors, who carried her to her cell, and conveyed her to the island in Lough Neagh, which bears her name to this day, and where she continued to practice her profession for many years, until her death. The O'Connors erected a tower in her memory, the ruins of which were converted into the late Lord Charlemont into a family mausoleum, and where he has now been entombed beside his wife, a daughter of the third Lord Castlemaine.

In the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and again in the rebellions of 1641 and 1798, Coney Island was used as a government penal settlement, and innumerable executions took place on a mound that is now used to support the flagstaff from which the banner of the late Lord Charlemont was flown whenever he was in residence.

Among other traditions of St. Coney is the one stubbornly held by all in the surrounding district, namely, that it is the healthiest spot on earth. Those who are sick or depressed seek its shores, and return vowing that a miracle has been worked, though at night they give it a wide berth, so that they do not see the fairies, and the spirits of those who have been executed there may enjoy themselves unmolested.

The Coney Island on the coast of New York is said to have received its name from settlers hailing from the shores of Lough Neagh, and while it constitutes, like its namesake in Ireland, an acknowledged cure for depression, it cannot be said to be given a wide berth at night. The late Lord Charlemont, who died within a few years, a controller of the victuaries household at Dublin, but was removed from his post by Lord Cadogan when viceroy, in consequence of his (Charlemont's) home rule leanings. He leaves an only daughter, wife of the Earl of Ranfurly, who inherits all his untitled property.

There was formerly an earldom of Charlemont, but the latter became extinct on the death of the third earl in 1892.

The first earl commanded in chief the movement known as the Irish Volunteers, was a fellow patriot of Henry Grattan, and died in 1798, so that he was spared the sorrow of witnessing the passage of the act of union. He was, like the late viscount, a bitter foe of that abominable land ordinance which has been so great a curse of Ireland, and introduced in Parliament at Dublin a bill rendering absenteeism an offense punishable with heavy fines. But the measure did not pass.

The patronymic of the family is Caulfield. The Caulfields hailed from Oxfordshire, and settled in Ireland in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, when Sir Toby Caulfield, of Great Milton, Oxford, was one of the commanders of the English forces against O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, many of whose confiscated lands he received by way of a grant.

King James I. of England is said to have raised Sir Toby to the peerage as Lord Caulfield, and "Burke," as well as other standard works of reference, gives the date of the creation of this dignity as 1620. But there is no contemporary record of any such dignity having been granted, and he was able to show neither writ of summons nor patent. In spite of this, his nephew and heir was permitted to take his seat in Parliament on sufferance, by a friendly vote of his fellow peers, fortunately this Lord Caulfield's son was created a viscount in due form by Charles II, shortly after the restoration, thus firmly establishing for him a place in the peerage.

The early years of the Caulfield family in Ireland were characterized by almost continuous warfare with the O'Neills, and it was with the object of strengthening his position against the Caulfields that Sir Phelim O'Neill obtained from the Pope the hereditary title of Prince of Ulster, which did not prevent him from being eventually put to death at Dublin, and having his head exhibited as that of a traitor, on Dublin Bridge.

Some idea of the great drain upon the income of the great British landowners by the maintenance of their country seats and ancestral homes may be derived from a perusal of the legal proceedings in progress between the Duke of Devonshire and the Derbyshire Water Board, which furnishes the water supply of Sheffield, Derby, Nottingham and Leicester. The pipes were carried through the park of the Duke of Devonshire's country seat at Chatsworth, known in ancient times as the Palace of the Reas, for a distance of four miles, at one point running close to the corner of the terrace upon which the palace stands. The duke demands $250,000 as damages for the easement, and it has been shown during the proceedings that the maintenance of Chatsworth, even in the absence of the family, costs $5,000, that is to say, $90,000 a year. When the duke and duchess and their children are in residence and when they entertain great house parties, the present King and Queen being frequent guests at Chatsworth, as were formerly also the late King Edward, as well as Queen Alexandra—the expenses are enormously increased.

No less than seventy gardeners are employed for the ornamental grounds. The park alone is eleven miles in circumference, and the entire estate exceeds 36,000 acres.

Druggists Favor State Prohibition.

Association Adopts Strong Resolution in Convention at Old Point.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Newport News, Va., July 10.—The Virginia Pharmaceutical Association, in thirty-second annual convention at Old Point this morning, elected officers, selected Richmond as the meeting place for next year, changed the date of meeting from July to September, and adopted a resolution practically placing the druggists of the State on record as favoring State prohibition. The resolution touching on the State-wide question and enabling act was a strong one, carried with it the decision of the pharmacists not to ask special favors of the Virginia Legislature as regards the sale of whiskey and patent medicines containing alcohol in this event that Virginia becomes a dry State. The druggists declared that the restrictions on the sale of ardent spirits should be made severe, so as to prevent any intimation that the drug stores of the State would become barrooms in carrying out of the prohibition movement.

The committee on nominations of officers presented its report, recommending the following, who were unanimously chosen: president, C. D. Owens, of Wytheville; vice-president, H. D. Pettit, of Leesburg; secretary, Randolph John, of Leesburg; second secretary, E. F. Bauer, of Richmond; treasurer, J. L. Brandis, of Richmond; treasurer, H. S. Eley, of Suffolk; local secretary, E. C. Toone, of Richmond; member of entertainment committee, C. A. Spencer, Jr., of Richmond; member executive committee, C. D. Fox, of Roanoke.

Candidates for appointment to the vacancy on the State Board of Pharmacy: T. A. Miller, Richmond; H. Lander, Lynchburg; W. F. Reeves, South Boston; J. T. Young, Roanoke; J. L. Hagan, Danville; trustees National Druggists' Home—T. A. Mann, Falls Church; T. Ramsey Taylor, Norfolk; J. F. Baker, Richmond.

The committee on the selection of the time and place of next meeting submitted a report recommending that the date be changed from July to the third Tuesday in September, and that Richmond be named as the place of meeting. The report was unanimously adopted. Another resolution was adopted, inviting the Rhode Island State Pharmaceutical Association to meet with the Virginia Association at its sessions in Richmond.

JAPANESE PROFESSOR HERE
Takeo Kusano to Study Cherry Culture at Cornell.
Ithaca, N. Y., July 10.—Takeo Kusano, professor of pomology at the Imperial College of Agriculture and Forestry in Japan, the land of the cherry tree, has come here at the expense of his government to study cherry culture.

He has been received as a guest student at Cornell University, whose farm has sixty-four of the most advanced kinds of edible cherries, while Japan has only fourteen kinds. Professor Kusano says that his country's fame in the cherry line rests more upon the beauty of the blossom than upon the fruit.

REPEAL PART OF RECIPROCITY ACT

Smoot Contends Print Paper Item Is in Conflict With Former Legislation.

Washington, July 10.—That the provision of the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, levying a duty of 12 per cent ad valorem on print paper valued at more than 2 1-2 cents a pound, and not more than 4 cents a pound, may repeal a portion of the Canadian reciprocity act of 1911, is contended in the analysis of the measure prepared and distributed by Senator Smoot, Republican member of the Finance Committee. If it does not operate to repeal the law, it is contended that there will be two rates in controversy on this grade of paper.

Besides the duty of 12 cents ad valorem, the Democratic bill would impose a countervailing act of 1911, it is free export license fee of other charge imposed by a foreign country.

"An interesting point to consider," the Smoot analysis sets forth, "is the effect of the enactment of this paragraph on the portion of the Canadian reciprocity act which admits to entry free of duty paper imported from Canada, valued at not more than 4 cents a pound. With respect to printing paper valued at more than 2 1-2 cents per pound, it is manifest that there is a complete repugnance between the two statutes, for by the terms of one, the act of 1911, is free of duty, and by the terms of the tariff bill it is subject to a duty of 12 per cent ad valorem. Nor can the two statutes be construed as to stand together. Under such circumstances the rule of law is that the statute of later date must prevail over the earlier statute, as being the latest expression of the legislative will, and that consequently the earlier statute stands repealed by implication."

Republican leaders will make a point of this on the floor of the Senate. To throw the tariff bill will be reported to the Senate, but the majority ported to the Senate, but the majority ported favoring the measure will not be presented by Chairman Simmons until Monday. If Republican leaders do not press for change in which to consider the measure, general debate will begin on Monday also. This question will be decided at a meeting of the membership of the Finance Committee to-morrow morning.

ROOSEVELT WARNS JAPAN

Declare Americans Will Not Permit Naturalization of Mikado's People.
Tokyo, July 10.—The Tai-hei-yo News Agency says to-day that Viscount Kintaro Kaneko has received a letter from Theodore Roosevelt expressing the view that American public opinion will not permit the naturalization of Japanese in the United States, as it would lead to a similar claim on the part of the Chinese.

Mr. Roosevelt, according to the news agency, promised to use his efforts in the solution of the California alien land ownership situation. Viscount Kaneko is a graduate in law of Harvard University. He was the official representative of Japan at the United States during the Russo-Japanese War, and delivered many addresses all over the country.

Attorney Can't Be Found.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Danville, Va., July 10.—The warrant issued yesterday evening for Attorney Roy C. Coleman, charging him with assault on Chief of Police Bell, has not yet been served, as the police are unable to locate the young barrister. It is believed that Coleman is at his home, two miles out in the country, but no steps have been taken by the authorities to have the warrant served on him. The lawyer probably will be in town to-morrow, as he is due to defend a negro charged with arson in the Police Court.
